

The Jasmine Throne

by Tasha Suri

A priestess and a princess find themselves entangled by destiny and the politics of empire.

Docile

by K.M. Szpara

A dark, disturbing speculative fiction novel about debt slavery, drugs, and consent under capitalism.

The Long Way to a Small, Angry Planet

by Becky Chambers

A warm, cozy story about found families in space.

Gideon the Ninth

by Tamsyn Muir

A darkly hilarious epic with sword swinging lesbian necromancers in space.

We Are Satellites

by Sarah Pinsker

Sophie takes on the evil company whose invasive technology has come between her and her family.

Witchmark

by C.L. Polk

Miles Singer escaped the pull of his family to forge his own destiny, but their need for his powers draws him back into a world he despises.

A Memory Called Empire

by Arkady Martine

Mahit Dzmare becomes embroiled in the politics of a powerful, seductive empire.

Read with Pride: Adult Sci-Fi & Fantasy

Sorrowland
by Rivers Solomon

Vern changes herself in strange and magical ways to protect her family from the cult she fled.

Persephone Station
by Stina Leicht

A community of android refugees fights for their freedom from the corporation that owns them.

Unconquerable Sun
by Kate Elliott

Princess Sun is ready to emerge from her mother the queen-ruler's shadow to prove herself as heir to the throne.

The Priory of the Orange Tree
by Samantha Shannon

Spy and bodyguard Ead Duryan falls for her charge, Queen Sabran, who faces threats from both within her own kingdom and from outside it.

Winter's Orbit
by Everina Maxwell

A space opera and slow-burn romance set against the machinations of empire.

The Watchmaker of Filigree Street
by Natasha Pulley

An uncanny love story combining fantasy and actual historical events.

The Seep
by Chana Porter

Left behind by her wife who chose to be reborn as a baby using alien Seeptech, Trina embarks on an unexpected quest and confronts her loss along the way.

The Traitor Baru Cormorant
by Seth Dickinson

Baru Cormorant tries to use her position in the empire to help her conquered people, but the price will be far greater than she knew.

A Master of Djinn
by P. Djèli Clark

Agent Fatma is called upon by the Ministry of Alchemy, Enchantments and Supernatural Entities to investigate the mysterious return of the most powerful man in history.

Silver in the Wood
by Emily Tesh

The Wild Man of Greenhollow Woods must face the literal spirits of his past after 400 years.

The Unbroken
by C.L. Clark

Under the shadow of empire, soldier Touraine and royal princess Luca make a dangerous alliance that calls their loyalties into question.

She Who Became the Sun
by Shelley Parker-Chan

Reimagines the rise of the first emperor of the Ming dynasty as a tale of magic, identity, and seizing destiny.